Export Financing: Alternative Options

Marlene Porter
August 9, 2016

AGENDA

Local vs. International Transactions

Financing Challenges

Financing Options

INTRODUCTION

- The trade or transaction cycle is typically longer for export than for local trade
- International transactions usually involve risks not present in local transactions e.g. exchange rate fluctuations, non-tariff barriers and the issues of cross border, shipping, customs, etc.
- Export transactions therefore require more cash resources than local transactions

FINANCING CHALLENGES

The number one challenge for SMEs is the lack of access to capital:

- Funding gaps influenced by firm size, risk, knowledge and flexibility
- Borrowing requirements are small and usually do not appeal to financial institutions
- Issues with collatorization

ADJUSTMENTS TO WAYS OF DOING BUSINESS

Reduce unproductive and non-essential assets

Negotiate longer payment terms

Cut expenses – both business and personal

Consider outsourcing or contract manufacturing

REVENUE BASED FINANCING

Factoring

- The purchase of credit worthy accounts receivable (by a financier) in exchange for immediate cash.

Purchase Order Financing

- Has some similarity to Factoring. The financier guarantees the order of a buyer by paying for the product to be manufactured, then taking their cut.

CREDIT CARDS

- A number of companies provide credit cards designed for business use offering low to zero percent introductory rates
- However, interest rates after this free or introductory period is often double digit.
- So, only those entrepreneurs with the discipline to manage this for of cash should consider it.

Recognition of Lenders/Givers

EQUITY FINANCING

- Investors provide the capital you need for a stake in the company
- A number of options exist:
 - Sell shares in the business
 - Offer employees shares in the business
 - Do not overlook family, friends and business acquaintances
 - Look for a partner
 - Other sources include venture capitalists and angel investors

COMPETITIONS

- Almost all business competitions have a cash prize
- However:
 - Many hours of time and preparation required
 - A good short term financial option, not a long term financing strategy

GRANT FUNDING

- Non-payable financing provided by government, nonprofits or other organizations to eligible applicants
- Usually targeted to specific industries/sectors
- Highly competitive and requires extensive reporting and tracking on how funds are being used
- Usually available on a reimbursable basis

AWARD PROGRAMMES

In-Kind Benefits

- Marketing
- Increase in Credibility
- Mentoring and Coaching
- Cost Savings
